Chapter 1 by AnimePup Paws

First kisses are supposed to be magical, they say. Beautiful! Firework-y. Dazzling. But not all first kisses are, that's for sure. Maybe I had a good one, but still. They're not all that you expect.

My first kiss was at school. I heaved my books. So much homework! That was when Jack Davids helped me.

I rolled my eyes. Not Jack! Jack had sent me so many valentines, every day. It was annoying.

Though he had cute, dark brown hair, and light brown eyes, I was not going to fall in love with a guy who wrote love letters. "Thanks," I muttered.

Jack wouldn't give up. "Sorry for all those notes."

My eyes widened in alarm. "Really? You're sorry?"

"Yeah. It's annoying you. It's time to get things done once and for all—"

I was super close to the wall. Jack grabbed my back and pushed me against it. I was freaking out.

That's when he came real close, and he kissed me.

ARGH!!!

His lips pressed against mine. I was going to freak out! My friend Leah pointed. Everyone was turned to look at me. I was so embarrassed, I was almost certain that I was pink from head to toe.

There was a chsnap sound. I was so shocked, I was almost certain I had taken a picture! "How cute!" she squeaked.

So, are all first kisses magical?

No.

Time for the view to transition to Kate Loren.

Note: this is all fiction.

Chapter 2 by

OMG. First kisses is not that magical. Okay?

This is how my friend told a boy to kiss me.

Hannah was minding her own business while Kylie Roberts was hanging around. Then Hannah ran to whisper to his ear. "Okay!" he said. Then he grabbed my wrists and kissed me.

"Dammit! He always likes girls with purple hair!" I thought. But I smiled anyways. Well I sometimes like boys with blonde hair.

Tee hee! :3

P.S This is just a story fake ok?
